Comprehensive Changes

Please join us for a timely discussion regarding the comprehensive changes that have been made to the 2008 Form 990, Return of Organizations Exempt from Income Tax. Among the changes made to the Form 990 is a new section on governance, management and disclosure which will require tax-exempt organizations to disclose:

- The existence of a conflict of interest policy, whether directors and officers must annually attest to compliance with the policy, and how the organization monitors compliance with the policy.
- The existence of a whistleblower policy.
- The existence of a record retention policy.
- Whether the organization complies with the excise benefit transaction regulations in setting executive compensation (e.g., use of compensation consultants, comparability data, etc.).
- Participation in joint ventures.
- Whether the Form 990 is reviewed by the directors before it is filed.
- Compensation practices, including the use of first-class travel, travel for spouses, housing allowances, social clubs, etc.

And the list goes on. For certain organizations, such as hospitals, new schedules have been developed which will require an organization to provide a detailed breakdown of its exempt activities and related expenses. The goal of the workshop is to provide information about all of the changes and disclosure requirements so that, prior to the end of 2008, organizations can start compiling the information they will need to produce on the new Form 990 and adopt the policies and procedures, the public disclosure of which is required on the new return.

Coffee and a light breakfast will be served.
