

Connecticut law provides 16 weeks of leave in a 24-month period, and does not permit a “key employee” exception in contrast to the federal law that provides for 12 weeks of unpaid leave in a 12 month period and has a key employee exception.