Anne Kubitsky
“Look For The Good Project”

Anne is an international speaker, author, artist, and founder of the Look for the Good Project, an award-winning organization that helps participants rise above violence and become inspiring leaders in their workplace communities and beyond.

Having been a victim of sexual assault, she started the LFTGP when she was feeling isolated and alone. Searching for a sense of purpose, she left 500 blank invitation postcards asking people to share what they were grateful for and mail it back to her. She has since received over 22,000 messages, befriended thousands of strangers, and demonstrated that anyone can create a movement that matters.

In 2015, Anne received a proclamation declaring April 19th “Look for the Good Day” in the city of Hartford. A frequent presenter at schools, colleges, and corporations, Anne’s popularity is skyrocketing. Her book, “What Makes You Grateful: Voices from Around the World” has been featured on MSNBC, Fox News, and NBC, as well as in Reader’s Digest, The Huffington Post, The Intelligent Optimist and Good Housekeeping Magazine.
