Decking the School's Halls: A Legal Update on Religion in Public Schools

Presented by Shipman & Goodwin LLP's School Law Practice Group

Free Registration

Registration required: space is limited so please register by November 27th.

About the Workshop

During this workshop we will discuss the legal issues regarding religion in the public schools. We will discuss the timely subject of religious and holiday displays in school and the extent to which the upcoming holidays may be celebrated as part of classroom activities. We will also review the general responsibilities of local and regional boards of education in maintaining a respectful school environment with regard to religion.

As part of this discussion, we will highlight the constitutional issues that impact religion in the schools on a broader scale.

Workshop Topics

The discussion will focus on the following topics:

- Religious and holiday displays;
- Holiday classroom activities;
- Responsibilities of local and regional boards of education; and
- Constitutional issues.

Coffee and a light breakfast will be served.

Please register online at: www.shipmangoodwin.com. On the events calendar, click on "Decking the School's Halls" or on the calendar on December 4th.

Invite a friend or colleague to join you.

Each participant is invited to bring a guest to the workshop. When registering, please register your guest as well.
