Claire Pariano is a member of Shipman's Employment and Labor and School Law practice groups. She advises, assists, and counsels employers, including schools, on an array of labor, employment, and personnel matters. Claire also has experience litigating employment disputes for a wide range of employers, both public and private, representing them in employment law matters before the Connecticut Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, and state and federal court.

Prior to joining Shipman, Claire was an associate at a global employment and labor law firm devoted exclusively to representing management and was also an associate at a nationwide litigation defense law firm.
