Katilee Boisvert represents companies in a variety of aspects of corporate and transactional law, including commercial financing and general corporate and commercial matters.

Katilee is a member of the firm's Commercial Finance Practice Group. She focuses her practice on representing primarily middle market clients in all aspects of mezzanine financing, secured and unsecured lending, and senior and junior subordinated lending. She is adept in structuring asset-based, acquisition and real estate financing. Her clients have included banks, funds and other lenders as well as borrowers, and she provides advice on structuring and negotiating the financing transactions that best meet her clients' goals.

Katilee is also a member of Shipman's Business and Corporate Practice Group, as well as the manufacturing and food and beverage industry teams. She provides advice on general corporate and business matters to middle market and start-up companies, including corporate governance and restructuring. She acts as outside general counsel for a variety of companies, working as their sole counsel or supplementing their in-house counsel's roles. As outside general counsel, she drafts, reviews and negotiates a broad range of commercial contracts for companies in a number of industries, including manufacturers and food and beverage companies. Her expertise in this area allows her to guide her clients through the legal review and negotiation process while keeping in mind their specific business needs and models.

Prior to joining Shipman, Katilee was a corporate and commercial finance attorney at Robinson & Cole LLP.
