Coleman Casey no longer maintains a full-time practice and he currently works a part-time schedule as counsel to our trusts and estates group. For many years, Coleman practiced in the areas of personal estate and tax planning. His experience included real estate and business transactions, having represented clients in the areas of commercial and public (tax-exempt) finance, asset-based lending, syndications, workouts, planning and zoning, environmental issues, leasing, real property tax appeals, foreclosures and condemnations.

Coleman developed a special knowledge of both educational and health care institutions through his long-term representation of the Connecticut Association of Independent Schools, Connecticut Health System, and the State of Connecticut Health and Educational Facilities Authority.

Active in charitable and community activities, Coleman was involved as a trustee or board member of more than 15 organizations. He was also a trustee of several charitable foundations and was the host of a long-running radio show, "What's New," on Connecticut Public Radio.
