Sarah Dlugoszewski is a member of the firm's Business Litigation Practice Group. Though Sarah's experience encompasses all types of litigation, tort liability—particularly personal injury and product liability cases—are Sarah's focus. Sarah thrives on cases involving unique factual circumstances and does not shy away from unfamiliar territory. She calls herself a perpetual student and is always willing to dive into a new topic or area of the law.

Sarah earned her law degree from the University of Connecticut School of Law. While enrolled in law school, Sarah also worked full time for a major insurance company, managing and resolving bodily injury, environmental, construction defect, and other toxic tort litigation and claims on behalf of the company's insureds. Sarah has extensive experience with complex insurance coverage issues through both her practice of law and former employment and is considered to be one of the firm's go-to resources for insurance-related questions.

Sarah is passionate about serving her community and provides pro bono legal advice and representation to the veteran community. In particular, Sarah has successfully pursued discharge upgrades and secured service-related benefits owed to deserving veterans.
